

Published based on Do Not Wear Jewellery To The Airport

Do Not Wear Jewellery To The Airport

I can understand why people dress up when it comes to going to the airport because they are getting on a plane full of loads of people and there are a lot of people out there that like to look their best for all kinds of situations including ones like this. However is it really necessary to put on all of that silver jewellery when it comes to the airport and even more importantly, would it be better off and waiting until you arrive n holiday.

Security

before you leave with all of your best jewellery on make sure you know about security, it is a lot tighter in some place rather than others, the US for example are very tight on all of their security. They will often ask people to take off all of that turquoise jewellery because it can interfere with the systems in place and will make the detector go off. you will have to do this when you land to which means a bit of hassle on both ends, you need to know this.

Being Comfortable

being comfortable on a flight, especially a long one is very important indeed and are you actually going to be comfortable in all of your best clothes and items, I seriously doubt it. Take the silver brooches off and make sure you can rest properly. if you are in your best jewellery there is no way at all you are going to get comfy. what person sleeps ins jewellery?

one a final note you always need to be aware of the people around you. There are people that are out there to steal things from people in the airport and if you are wearing expensive jewellery it is likely to encourage these people more than anything else.

the decision on something like this is always up to the wearer.

You can also find this article published on Do Not Wear Jewellery To The Airport