Enlisting Priority Services For Your Stained Passport

Why would you ever need the help of a quick damaged passport service? Well say, as a US citizen, you havent been abroad for over 5 years, but youre taking a vacation to Europe - and are in fact, leaving tomorrow! Youre SURE youve covered everything - youre all packed, you have your itinerary and your travelers checks - you can even feel a slight sting from the shots you had two days ago. Most importantly, you have a valid passport - in fact, you know exactly which brown shoe box you put it in five years earlier.

However, when you take it out, you notice that some type of liquid has crept in underneath the plastic, and is now obliterating part of your name. So, do you think that your passport - in its current condition - will gain you entry into another country? If youre thinking yes, then you are woefully wrong.

You probably already know that in times like these, every country in the world has gotten knit picky as far as who they let across their borders, based on the documentation a person presents when they attempt to enter. And, this is especially true with passports. So, if you find out at the last minute that your passport is in less than stellar condition, what happens next?

Well, if you happen to get held up at the border due to a suspect passport, you will then need the services of a next day pass port service, immediately, so you can get a replacement and be on your way.

You can easily find a number of these services online to help you. And, be prepared to provide them with necessary information that includes your reasons for traveling, proper forms of ID - like drivers license and social security card - passport photos, proof of US citizenship, a written statement of how your passport came to be damaged - and a properly filled out application for a new passport.

To get their services, you will have to have a valid credit card on hand, and it wont be cheap. Be aware that you could be spending up to three hundred dollars - depending on if you need your passport immediately. Once the purchase has gone through, you will then be given your own passport expedition case worker, who will see you through the process - from start to completion, so you can get on with your trip.

So this doesnt happen to you in the future, you may want to take steps now to protect important documents such as these. One way is to wrap them up carefully in clean cloth, and then seal them in a clean, airtight bag. Then, you will want to store them in a container that is completely empty, and free from the threat of leakage or other damage. And finally, make sure that you store your container in a clean dry place - up high and out of the reach of children.

So, hopefully after reading this, youve become a bit more educated on how things like water seepage, wine spills, and even the innocent mark of a pen can render a once valid passport invalid - and keep you south of whatever border it is youre trying to cross. But if, despite your best efforts, something like this happens anyway, you can rest assured that there are overnight damaged passport services available to help you out of your bind, and into the country youre planning to visit.
